It Contained $500 and Two Rings and Was Picked Up by a Passing Pedestrian Mrs. O'Keeffe Is the Lady Made Famous by Her Litigation with Ross Winane-Prestrated by Her Loss.

Mrs. Alice O'Keeffe keeps a fashionable boarding-house in the elegant four-story brown-stone se at the corner of Madison avenue and Thirty-first street.

She is the lady whose litigation with Mr. Ross Winans made her famous three years ago. Mrs. O'Keeffe is imbued with as much patriotism as most American ladies, but she will sember the celebration of the Centennial of stitutional Government with anything but easant feelings. At noon yesterday while she was endeavoring to dose a fourth story window on the Thirty-first street side of her house, she dropped from her hand her pocketbook containing $500 of Uncle Bam's money, two valuable rings, and some Papers.

The purse struck on a balcony at the parlor floor and bounded off into the street.

There were throngs of people all along the street, moving tewards Fifth avenue, where the great industrial parade was passing.

Afts. O'Reeffe ran excitedly down the stairs and into the street.

Dismay! The pocketbook was not lying on the spot where she had seen it fall, and the people in the street were moving on, unconcerned by the mishap which had befallen her.

After a faint-hearted effort to find out who of the passers by had picked up her pocketbook Mrs. O'Reeffe returned to her home, faint and weak.

One of her boarders notified the sergeant at the station-house of the Broadway Squad, in Twenty-ninth street, and a general alarm was sent out. But the finder of Mrs. O'Keeffe's pocketbook has not yet made himself manifest, although she offers a liberal reward to the finder for the status.

Miles Hillary Cannot Be Found and the Other Persons Not Yet Arrested-Dr. Chadbourne and Prof. Cartler Deny the Charges Made Against Them-Nettle' Death-Bed Story.

Poor Nettie Guyon, more blonde than ever in the blanching tints of death, which stung her young life into perennial repose with love's poisoned arrow, lay in her father's house, 12 merce street, this morning when Coroner Hanly's jury of six physicians and six laymen entered at 10, 15 to make the autopsy.

her suffering from an acute attack of peritonitis.

Sunday morning Dr. Romaine, with Dr. Edwin D. O'Neil, of 471 Hudson street, visited Nestie again. The girl told them that under advice of Hillary she had consulted Dr. Edwin R. Chadbourne, of 31 West Twenty-third street, twice, once on April 19 and again on April 22.

That same evening Hillary called on Dr. Romaine again and said he had been lutimate with Nellie, and was willing to stand the consequences. He added that Peter Cartier, 80 Fifth avenue, professor of dancing, had sent him to Dr. Chadbourne. Hilldary cannot now be found.

Dr. Chadbourne admits the girl's visits, but says that he flatly refused to do anything.

Prof. Cartier denies that Hillary confided anything about the girl's condition to him.

BATTLED LONG FOR LIFE.

TWO YOUNG MEN UPSET IN NEWARK BAY AND ONE DROWNED.

The body of Charles Danhart, of 28 Pamrapo venue, Jersey City, was found floating in the water near Morris Canal this morning.

Danhart and Charles Fisher went sailing yesterday afternoon in Newark Bay, off Bayonne.

terday afternoon in Newark Bay, off Bayonne. The two were friends, about twenty-two years old, and lived in the same house.

About 4 o'clock the boat capsized, and the two friends had a terrible experience battling for their lives.

They tried to cling to the bottom of the boat, but the cold water benumbed their hands, and they were washed off.

They were a long way from shore, and their cries for help could not be heard.

Finally they attempted to swim for shore, hut they had not gone far before Danhart became exhausted. Fisher was the better swimmer, but he could do nothing for his friend.

It was nearly dark when Patrolman Bose heard cries out in the bar, it was some time before he could locate the sound, but when he did he saw a man in the water struggling desperately in his attempt to reach the shore.

The officer helped Fisher out, nearly exhausted with his struggle for life. He was taken home, and vain search was made for his companion until this morning.

S. Krzeminski, an agent for the Prudentia Insurance Company, mailed an insurance policy in a letter-box on Washington street Monday evening. The envelope was long and the end stuck out of the box.

This morning Johnnie and Patsy went to Mr. Krzeminski's house with the policy, and de-manded $5 for it, saying they found it on the street.
The insurance agent called an officer and had the boys arrested.

The Postmaster and police authorities are investigating the case.

No Stock Taken in the Story of Yellow

INPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD, I BALTIMORE, May 2. - Agent Atchison, of A Schumacher & Co., when called upon this morning, discredited the report that yellow fever had infected the steamer Weser at Bremen. had infected the steamer weser at Bromen.

He knew nothing about the cargo she brought to this port on her last trip, but did not think the steamer had anything on board her which would breed contagion.

He thought that if there really was fever aboard it must be of a mild character, and was inclined to think the report was greatly exaggerated.

inclined to think the report was greatly exag-gerated.

President Von Lingen, of the Company, was also inclined to discredit the report. He said the Weser, when she left Baltimore, was in first-class sanitary condition. She had a small num-ber of steerage passengers aboard, and the ves-sel was therefore in no wise crowded.

Several shipping merchants, to whom was shown the despatch from the Lloyds concerning the yellow fever on the Weser, were much sur-prised at the report. They were of the opinion that the disease was some milder form of disease than "Yellow Jack," and could not see how the vessel could have gotten the fever aboard at this port.

The presentation took place on Park Place during a balt in the military parade. Col. Fenn pluned the badge on Gen. Gordon's breast, and made the presentation speech.
